Question

The following text is from Nella Larsen's 1928 novel Quicksand.

The trees in their spring beauty sent through her restive mind a sharp thrill of pleasure. Seductive, charming, and beckoning as cities were, they had not this easy unhuman loveliness.

As used in the text, what does the word “beckoning” most nearly mean?

Answer

- A. Demanding
- B. Signaling
- C. Inviting
- D. Shifting
